

Historical Charades

- The game can be played as individuals or in teams.
- Everyone involved in the fun should write down a historical person's name, a historic place, history genre book title, or historical movie on a small piece of paper. As a group you can even decide on a specific era or theme!
- Each player should come up with several ideas so there's more variety.
- Fold and place your paper in a hat or bowl. Scramble.
- Select who will go first. Choose a paper from the batch.
- Without using words (though sometimes sounds are permitted) act out the clue for the group.
- The first person or team to guess the clue gets a point.
- This game can also be played like "Pictionary or Cranium" using clay to mold the clue or paper and pencil to draw it out. Or like "Headbands," with a historical person's name written on a card then stuck to a player's forehead! Try it different ways!
- Use a timer to make it more exciting!
